

Yeah, there's a problem!

SO WHAT CAN I DO?

So Others Might Eat

Share Your Experience

- Tell your friends what you learned in the Social Justice Reflection. Say they should ask for one too.
- Speak up and correct harmful stereotypes. Talk about why people are homeless and poor. Share stories you've learned.
- Use the internet to get the word out. Write about what you learned on your personal page or blog, if you have one.

HOMELESSNESS

Help people who are homeless. Learn how we can all work together to stop homelessness from happening.

RIGHT NOW!

Go through all your stuff at home. Pick out your old toys, clothes and books. Put the ones that are in good shape in bags or boxes. Keep the different types of items separate and make sure the clothes are clean. Then take them to an organization that will give them to people in need. Someone at your school or place of worship can probably recommend one.

Keep On Learning

- Read news articles about homeless and low-income people. Look in a daily newspaper or an online news site. Sign up for Google e-mail alerts.
- Fit your interest into school assignments. When you can choose your own topic, write about something having to do with homeless or poor people. Suggest a class project or field trip on the topic.

Find Ways You Can Help

- Volunteer! Help a local organization that serves homeless and low-income people. Bring your friends along and try to get to know the people you serve. Listen to their life stories.
- Organize a gift-giving project. Suggest that a group you belong to donate canned foods, clothing, personal items or toys to an organization that will give them to children and adults in need.

Continue Your Personal Growth

- Always treat everyone as an individual human being—and with respect.
- Develop your ability to sympathize with people in trouble. Think back to times when other people have been kind to you. Try to be an example of caring behavior.
